LEXICON

OF

THE GREEK LANGUAGE,

FOR THE USE OF

Colleges and Schools:

CONTAINING,

I. A GREEK-ENGLISH LEXICON,

COMBINING THE ADVANTAGES OF AN ALPHABETICAL AND DERIVATIVE ARRANGEMENT;

II. AN ENGLISH-GREEK LEXICON,

MORE COPIOUS THAN ANY THAT HAS YET APPEARED.

TO WHICH IS PREFIXED,

A CONCISE GRAMMAR OF THE GREEK LANGUAGE.

BY

THE REV. J. A. GILES, LL.D.

LATE FELLOW OF C.C.C. OXON.

HEAD MASTER OF THE CITY OF LONDON SCHOOL.

PREFACE.

It will not require many words to explain the nature of the Lexicon which now invites the attention of the Public. The object of the Compiler has been to reduce into a small compass, and at a reasonable price, for the use of colleges and schools, the best information and most useful matter, found hitherto in several distinct volumes. With this view he has condensed the contents of the Greek-English Part into so small a space (at the same time retaining a larger number of words than any other volume of the same size) as to leave ample room for the introduction of an English-Greek Lexicon, at least twice as comprehensive as any that has yet appeared. Indeed, this second part will be found to contain every particle of information which is to be procured from other Lexicons, and a great quantity besides. In the first part the Compiler has thought it sufficient to give only the primary and principal meanings of Greek verbs, and considers it worse than useless, when he has once explained such words as καὶ, λέγω, &c., by saying that they mean "and or also", "say, collect, gather", &c., to extend the subject to several pages about matters which cannot but occur to the student in the perusal of his author. A short Grammar has been prefixed, which may be found useful to those who do not wish to multiply books, and will be glad to find the present volume serve them for two purposes.

Every vowel, at the beginning of a word, has either the rough breathing (ʽ) which corresponds to the English h ; as ὁ, ho ; ἡ, he : or the smooth breathing (ʼ) ; as ἐτος, etos. Υ and the consonant ρ, always have the rough breathing ; as ὑπο, hupo ; ῥωμη, rhome. When two ρ's come together, the former has the smooth, the latter the rough breathing ; as ἐῤῥεον, errheon. Γ before γ, κ, ξ, χ, is sounded like ν ; as ἀνάγκη, anancke.

The stops are the comma (,) the colon (·) and the period (.).

There are nine parts of speech, Noun Substantive, Pronoun, Noun Adjective, Article, Verb, Adverb, Preposition, Conjunction, and Interjection.

SUBSTANTIVES are of three genders : masculine, feminine, and neuter.

There are three numbers : singular, dual, and plural ; the dual speaks of two, the plural of three or more.

Of GREEK VERBS there is only one regular conjugation in -ω, besides an old form in -μι retained in a few words.

There are three Voices; Active, Middle, and Passive; as, ACT. τύπτω, I strike (another). MID. τύπτομαι I strike myself. PASS. τύπτομαι I am struck.

There are five Moods; Indicative, Imperative, Subjunctive, Optative, and Infinitive, besides participles.

There are in all ten Tenses; Present, Imperfect, First Future, Second Future, Paulo-post Future, First Aorist, Second Aorist, Perfect, Second Perfect, and Pluperfect. The aorist tenses are generally perfect in signification but indefinite.

There are three Numbers, Singular, Dual, and Plural; and three Persons in each number.

The principal parts, from which others are derived, are the Act Ind. Pres. — Act. Ind. 1st Fut.— Act. Ind. Perf. — and Pass. Ind. Perf. — to which the Second Future and the Second Perfect must be added in the case of verbs which admit those tenses.

The terminations of the Principal Parts are -ω, -σω, -ῶ, -κα, -α, -μαι or · μαι; as ἀκού-ω, I hear; ἀκού-σω, ἀκο-ῶ, ἤκου-κα, ἀκήκο-α, ἤκου-σμαι.

AUGMENT, FORMATION OF THE TENSES, ETC.

The Middle and Passive Tenses are formed from the Active; as, ἀκού-ω, ἀκού-ουαι.

The several Tenses of the Imperative, Subjunctive, Optative, Infinitive, and Participles, are formed from the corresponding tenses of the Indicative; as, ἀκού-ω, ἄκου-ε, ἀκού-ω, ἀκού-οιμι, ἀκού-ειν, ἀκού-ων.

From the Present is formed the Imperfect; as, ἀκού-ω, ἤκου-ον — from the 1st Future the 1st Aorist; as, ἀκού-σω, ἤκου-σα — from the 2d Future the 2d Aorist; as, ἀκο-ῶ ἤκοον: the Middle Perfect; as, ἀκήκο-α: and the Middle Pluperfect; as, ἠκηκό-ειν — and from the Perfect is formed the Pluperfect; as, ἤκουκα, ἠκουκ-ειν.

The principal parts are formed from the Present, by changing the termination -ω into -σω, -ῶ, -κα, -α, -μαι or -σμαι.

The Middle Perfect is analogous to the 2nd Future and 2nd Aorist, each of these tenses having their penultimate shortened; as ἀκούω, ἀκοῶ, ἤκοον, ἠκήκοα.

If the Passive Perfect end in -σμαι, all the 1st Futures and 1st Aorists will have σ before θ; as ἤκου-σμαι ἀκου-σθήσομαι ἠκού-σθην.

The letter ἐ, called the augment, is prefixed to the Imperfect and Aorist Tenses, as τίω, ἔτιον, ἔτισα (no 2nd Aor.), ἀκούω ἐάκουον contracted ἤκουον.

If the verb begin with a vowel or two consonants, the augment is prefixed to the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Paulo-post Future also; as ἀκούω, ἐάκουκα c. ἤκουκα, ἐακούκειν c. ἠκούκειν, ἐακούσομαι c. ἠκούσομαι, also στερέω, ἐστέρηκα, ἐστερήκειν, ἐστερήσομαι.

If the verb begin with a single consonant, that consonant with ε (called the syllable of reduplication) is prefixed to the Perfect and Paulo-post Futures; as, λείπω, λέ-λειφα, λέ-λοιπα, λέ-λειμμαι, λε-λείψομαι. Both the augment and the reduplication are prefixed to the Pluperfects; as, ἐ-λε-λείφειν, ἐ-λε-λοίπειν, ἐ-λε-λείμμην.

Ρ is doubled after the augment; as, ῥίπτω, ἔῤῥιπτον.

If the verb begin with an aspirated consonant, the reduplication begins with the corresponding smooth consonant; as, θύω, τέθυκα; φιλέω, πεφίληκα.

Some verbs have the reduplication in the 2nd Aorist; as, ἄγω, ἤγαγον; κάμνω, κέκαμον.

EXAMPLES OF AUGMENT AND REDUPLICATION.

αἰτέω, ἤτεον, ask.
αὐχέω, ηὔχεον, boast.
αὐδάω, ηὔδαον, speak.
ἐάω, εἴαον, suffer.
εἰκάζω, ᾔκαζον, guess.
ἐλπίζω, ἤλπιζον, hope.
ἑρμηνεύω, ἑρμήνευον, interpret.
ἔχω, εἶχον, have.
ἱκάνω, ἵκανον, come.
κτάομαι, κέκτημαι, acquire.
οἰκέω, ᾤκεον, dwell.
ὁράω, ἑώραον, see.
ὀρύσσω, ὤρυσσον, dig.
πίπτω, πέπτωκα, fall.
ὑβρίζω, ὕβριζον, insult.
ὠφελέω, ὠφέλεον, assist.

In composition the augment and reduplication, with some exceptions, come between the preposition and the word; sometimes the augment occurs in both situations; as—προσβάλλω, προσέβαλλον, cast against.

ἐμμένω, ἐνέμενον, remain in.
καθεύδω, ἐκάθευδον or καθηῦδον, sleep.
ἐνοχλέω, ἠνώχλεον, trouble.
ἀνέχομαι, ἠνειχόμην, bear up.

Α, Ε, and Ο before ω, generally become Η and Ω in the Future and Perfect; as—νικάω, νικήσω, νενίκηκα, νενίκημαι, conquer.

φιλέω, φιλήσω, πεφίληκα, πεφίλημαι, love.
δηλόω, δηλώσω, δεδήλωκα, δεδήλωμαι, show.

Some exceptions are found, particularly if ρ or a vowel precede; as—δράω, δράσω, ἑώρακα, ἑώραμαι, see.

ἐάω, ἐάσω, εἴακα, εἴαμαι, suffer.
τελέω, τελέσω, τετέλεκα, τετέλεσμαι, accomplish.

Τ, Δ, Θ, Ζ, before ω are dropped in the Future and Perfect Tenses; as—ἀνύτω, ἀνύσω, ἤνυκα, ἤνυσμαι, perform.

ἄρδω, ἄρσω, water.
πείθω, πείσω, πέπεικα (πέποιθα), πέπεισμαι, persuade.
ἁρπάζω, ἁρπάσω, ἥρπακα, ἥρπασμαι, seize.

Π, Β, and Φ, before ω coalesce with -σω into -ψω, with -κα into -φα, before -μαι they become μ, before -θήσομαι, &c. they become φ; as—λείπω, λείψω, λέλειφα, λέλειμμαι, leave, λειφθήσομαι.

ἀμείβω, ἀμείψω, ἤμειφα, ἤμειμμαι, change, ἀμειφθήσομαι.
γράφω, γράψω, γέγραφα, γέγραμμαι, write, γραφθήσομαι.

Κ, Γ, Χ, ΣΣ, and ΤΤ coalesce with -σω into -ξω, with -κα into -χα, before -μαι they become γ, before -θήσομαι they become χ; as—διώκω, διώξω, δεδίωχα, δεδίωγμαι, pursue, διωχθήσομαι.

ἄγω, ἄξω, ἦχα, ἦγμαι, lead, ἀχθήσομαι.
τεύχω, τεύξω, τέτευχα, τέτευγμαι, make, τευχθήσομαι.
πράσσω, πράξω, πέπραχα, πέπραγμαι, do, πραχθήσομαι.

Verbs in -λω, -μω, -νω, -ρω, have no 1st Future, but often two forms of the 2nd; as στέλλω, στελῶ σταλῶ, ἔσταλκα, ἔστολα, ἔσταλμαι, send.

νέμω, νεμῶ, νενέμηκα, νενέμημαι, distribute.
φαίνω, φανῶ, πέφαγκα, πέφηνα, πέφαμμαι, show.
σπείρω, σπερῶ σπαρῶ, ἔσπαρκα, ἔσπορα, ἔσπαρμαι, sow.

They lengthen the penultimate of the 1st Aorist; as στέλλω ἔστειλα, φαίνω ἔφηνα, σπείρω ἔσπειρα, &c.

The Passive Perfects undergo frequent changes of letters for the sake of euphony; as—ΛΕΙΠΩ—λέλει-μμαι -ψαι -πται, -μμεθον -φθον -φθον, -μμεθα -φθε -φαται or -μμένοι εἰσί.

ΑΜΕΙΒΩ—ἤμει-μμαι -ψαι, &c.

ΓΡΑΦΩ—γέγρα -μμαι -ψαι, &c.

ΔΙΩΚΩ—δεδίω-γμαι -ξαι -κται, -γμεθον -χθον -χθον, -γμεθα -χθε -χαται or -γμένοι εἰσί.

The same changes are found in the Pluperfect also.

VERBS in -άω -έω όω, are CONTRACTED in the Present and Imperfect of all Moods; as follows:—

1. Νικάω c. νικῶ, νικήσω, νενίκηκα, νενίκημαι, I conquer.

PART II.—SYNTAX.

CHAP. I.—AGREEMENT.

1. § I. A VERB agrees with its NOMINATIVE in number and person; as—Ἐγὼ γράφω, I write. Σὺ ἀκούεις, thou hearest. Παῖς τρέφεται, a son is nourished. Ὑμεῖς λέγετε, you say. Πρίαμος ἔλαβε, Priam took. Ἄνακτες νενίκηνται, kings have been conquered; Σφῷ λείπετον, you two leave; Ἐγὼ νικηθήσομαι, I shall be conquered.

2. If the nominative be a neuter plural noun, the verb will generally be singular; as—Ἄστρα φαίνεται, stars appear. Λελέξεται τάδε, these things shall be said.

3. A plural verb often follows a dual nominative; as—Ἀμφὼ λέγουσι, both say.

4. Also a dual verb follows a plural nominative if only two individuals are spoken of; as—Δύω υἱέες ἤστην, there were two sons. Χειμάρροι ποταμοὶ συμβάλλετον ὕδωρ, two wintry rivers unite their water.

5. § II. An ADJECTIVE or ARTICLE agrees with its substantive in gender, number, and case; as—Ἀνὴρ ἀγαθός, a good man. Παῖδε φίλω, two dear children; γυνὴ φιλτάτη, a very dear woman; Τοῦ πατρός, of the father; Τὼ ταύρω, the two bulls. Σοφία ἀθάνατος, immortal wisdom.

6. An Adjective, instead of agreeing with, often has its substantive in the genitive; as—Φαῦλοι τῶν ἀνθρώπων, the bad among men (or simply, bad men).

7. The substantives ἄνθρωπος, MAN, and χρῆμα, THING, are generally omitted; as—Ὀρθὸν (χρῆμα) ἐστὶν ἡ ἀλήθεια, truth is right. Φαῦλοι (i. e. ἄνθρωποι) φαῦλα (i. e. χρήματα) ποιοῦσι, bad men do bad actions. Οἱ καλοί, the good.

8. Many other substantives are frequently omitted, being understood from the nature of their adjectives; as—Πατρὶς (i. e. γῆ), one's country. Τὰ κακὰ (i. e. χρήματα), evils.

9. The relative adjectives ὅς, who, which, ὅστις, whoever; οἷος, as, &c., take their gender and number from their antecedents; as—Τῆς τιμῆς, ᾗ με τιμᾶτε, of the honour with which you honour me. Τὸ φῶς ὃ φωτίζει πάντα ἄνθρωπον, the light which lighteth every man.

10. They often take their case also from the antecedent; as—
Ἐν ταῖς ἑορταῖς αἷς ἤγομεν, in the festivals which we were celebrating.

11. § III. Two substantives in APPOSITION, i. e. denoting the same person or thing, in the same sentence, are in the same case; as—Συέννεσις ὁ βασιλεύς, Syennesis the king. Ἀρταφέρνης ὁ σατράπης, Artaphernes the satrap.

12. The genitive is the case used absolutely in Greek; as—Ἐμοῦ ταῦτα ποιοῦντος, whilst I was doing these things. Δαρείου βασιλεύοντος, whilst Darius was reigning.

CHAP. II.—GOVERNMENT.

13. § I. Substantives, denoting the possessor, are put in the genitive, governed by the thing possessed; as—

14. The substantive signifying DUTY, OFFICE, SIGN, &c., is generally omitted; as—Βασιλέως ἐστὶ φυλάττειν τὴν βασιλείαν, it is (the duty) of a king to protect the kingdom.

15. Also nouns of parentage, SON, DAUGHTER, &c., and several others; as—Νηλεὺς ὁ Κόδρου (i. e. υἱός), Neleus son of Codrus. Εἰς Ἀΐδου (i. e. δόμον), to the house of Hades.

16. § II. Adjectives signifying POSSESSION or SEPARATION, or certain AFFECTIONS of the mind or body, govern a genitive; as—Ἐλεύθερος τοῦδε φόβου, free from this fear. Μνήμων τῶν φίλων ἐστί, he is mindful of his friends. Πλούσιος ἀργυρίου, rich in silver. Φίλων ἔρημος, destitute of friends.

17. Comparative and superlative adjectives, numerals, &c., are followed by the genitive; as—Ἀρετὴ πλούτου κρείττων ἐστί, virtue is better than wealth; Ἀλέξανδρος ἦν μέγιστος τῶν Μακεδονίας βασιλέων, Alexander was the greatest of the kings of Macedonia.

18. § III. The active or middle VERB, if transitive, has its agent in the nominative and its object in the accusative; as—Κῦρος ἔπεμψε τὸν κήρυκα, Cyrus sent the herald; Ξενοφῶν μετεπέμπετο τὸν Κλέαρχον, Xenophon sent for Clearchus.

19. The middle verb is used when the action reflects back on the agent; as—Ἀπέθετο τὸν στέφανον, he laid aside the crown (from himself). Μετεπέμπετο τὸν παῖδα, he sent for the boy (to himself).

20. If the verb be passive, the object becomes its nominative and the agent is put in the genitive, governed by the preposition ὑπὸ; as—Ἀχιλλεὺς ὑπὸ Πάριδος ἐτοξεύθη, Achilles was shot with an arrow by Paris. Ζεὺς ὑπὸ Ἀμαλθείας ἐθρέφθη, Jupiter was nourished by Amalthæa.

21. Intransitive verbs are followed by a genitive or dative, according to the substantive or adjective from which they are derived; as—Μέμνημαι (from μνεία) τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ, I remember his father. Ἠκούετο (from ἀκοὴ) τῆς αὐτῆς, he heard the noise.

Ἐναντιοῦμαί (from ἐναντίος) σοι, I am opposed to you.

22. Verbs of giving, lending, &c., and all verbs implying gain to the receiver, have a dative of the person, and if transitive, an accusative of the thing; as—

Θεοὶ Πριάμῳ ἔδοσαν ἀγλαὰ δῶρα, the gods gave splendid gifts to Priam. Συέννεσις ἔδωκε Κύρῳ χρήματα πολλὰ Κῦρος δὲ ἐκείνῳ ἀκινάκην χρυσοῦν, Syennesis gave Cyrus much money, but Cyrus (gave) him a golden scimetar.

23. Verbs of receiving, taking away, &c., and all verbs implying gain to the agent or separation from the object, are followed by a genitive governed by ἐκ or ἀπὸ; as—

Ἀπήλλαγμαι φόβου, I have been released from fear. Ἐξ Ἀθηναίου τινὸς τοῦτο ἔλαβον, I received this from a certain Athenian.

24. They sometimes have two accusatives; as—

Ἐμὲ ἀφαιρεῖται Χρυσηΐδα Φοῖβος Ἀπόλλων, Phœbus Apollo takes away Chryseïs from me.

25. The neuter verb εἰμὶ, AM; γίγνομαι, BECOME; and passive verbs signifying TO BE CALLED and THE LIKE, have the same case after them as before them; as—

Θεὸς ἦν ὁ λόγος, the word was God. Ἡ ζωὴ ἦν τὸ φῶς τῶν ἀνθρώπων, the life was the light of men. Ὁ λόγος σάρξ ἐγένετο, the word became flesh. Πάρις ἐπωνομάσθη Ἀλέξανδρος, Paris was additionally named Alexander.

26. Verbs of buying, selling, estimating, &c., have a genitive of the price; as—

Ὠνέονται χρημάτων μεγάλων, they purchase for much money. Ἐγὼ ἂν τουτο τῆς ψυχῆς πριαίμην, I would purchase this with my life.

27. Verbs of accusing, condemning, &c., are followed by a genitive of the offence; as—

Ἐδίωξαν Μιλτιάδεα τυραννίδος, they prosecuted Miltiades for tyranny; Αἰτιῶνταί με φόνου, they accuse me of murder.

28. Nouns signifying the instrument or manner of an action, are put in the dative; as—

Δυοῖν ὀφθαλμοῖν ὁρᾶν, to see with two eyes. Ἤλασεν αὐτὸν τῷ σκήπτρῳ, he smote him with the sceptre.

29. The cause and instrument are often in the genitive, governed, the former by ἕνεκα, the latter by διὰ expressed or understood; as—

Ἡ ψυχὴ διὰ τῶν ὀφθαλμῶν ὁρᾷ, the soul sees by means of the eyes. Ἔγραψα τοῦτο (ἕνεκα) τοῦ μή τινα ζητῆσαί ποτε, I wrote this that no one might ever inquire.

30. The TIME AT WHICH any thing is done, is put in the dative; as—

Τῇ ὑστεραίᾳ (ἡμέρᾳ) ἦλθεν ὁπλίτας ἔχων, on the following day he came having men-at-arms.

31. The DURATION OF TIME is in the accusative, or the genitive governed by διὰ; as—

32. The PLACE AT WHICH a thing is done is in the dative, ἐν or ἐπὶ being either expressed or understood; as—

33. The place to which motion takes place, is in the accusative, governed by some preposition expressed or uuderstood; as—

Ἤιει πρὸς Βαβυλῶνα, he went to Babylon. Ἐπορεύθη εἰς τὸ ὄρος, he proceeded to the mountain.

34. The subjunctive and optative moods are used in oblique senses, generally having some relative conjunction, or conjunctive word, subjoining them to a preceding verb. (See § on Conjunctions.)

35. The infinitive mood is used substantively in all cases; as—

Τὸ φιλεῖν, to love; τοῦ κινεῖν, of moving; τῷ κινδυνεύειν, by incurring danger, &c.

36. It is also used after certain conjunctions, in subordinate sentences. (See § on Conjunctions.)

37. Most verbs have a form in -εον or -εα which denotes NECESSITY OR DUTY, and is equivalent to the Latin gerund; as ποιητέον or ποιητέα. The agent, as in Latin, will be in the dative, and the object in the same case as that which usually follows the verb; as—

Ταῦτά μοι ποιητέον (or ποιητέα) ἐστὶ, I must do these things. Ἀρέτην ἡμῖν δηλωτέον ἐστιν ἐν τῇ προσερχομένῃ μάχῃ, we must show valour in the approaching battle.

38. Participles like adjectives agree with their substantives, and govern the same cases as their verbs; as—

Συεννέσις ἦν ἐπὶ τῶν ἄκρων φυλάττων τὴν εἰσβολὴν, Syennesis was on the heights guarding the entrance.

39. A Participle, preceded by an article, is equivalent to a relative with the verb; as—

Οἱ ποιοῦντες ταῦτα, those who do these things.

40. IMPERSONAL VERBS, as δεῖ, χρῆ, &c., govern a genitive, dative, or accusative, according to their various significations; as—

PART III.—PROSODY.

I. ACCENT—§ II. QUANTITY—§ III. METRE.

§ I. A word, whose last syllable (ultima) is ccented, is called OXYTONE; as, μηδισμός.

An oxytone word in the middle of a sentence, before no longer stop than that marked by a mma, has the accent inclining to the opposite rection; as, ἀνὴρ ἀγαθός. This is called the ave accent to distinguish it from the other hich is called the acute.

A word, whose last syllable but one (penulma) is accented, is called PAROXYTONE; as ω.

A word, whose last syllable but two (antepenultima) is accented, is called proparoxytone; as, ἔτιον.

Proparoxytone words must have their last syllable short.

The final diphthongs οι and αι are short with reference to accent, except in the optative and infinitive moods of verbs.

A word, whose ultima is circumflexed, is called perispomenon; as, ἀγρῶν.

A word, whose penultima is circumflexed, is called properispomenon; as, δῆμος.

A circumflexed syllable is always contracted of two others of which the former was accented; as, ἐνικάετον, ἐνικᾶτον; νικάω, νικῶ.

A paroxytone word becomes properispomenon, if its ultima be short and its penultima a long vowel or a diphthong.

The accentuation of words generally admits of no classification, but must be ascertained in the case of each word by reference to the Lexicon.

The alteration of accent, caused by the declension, conjugation, or composition of a word, may be ascertained from the following observations:—

The syllable which is accented in the nominative will retain the accent in every other case, unless changed by the influence of any other rule, in which case it will experience as slight a change as possible; i. e. it will move to the next syllable; or be changed from the accent to the circumflex and vice versâ.

Oxytone nouns of the first and second declensions have all their genitives and datives perispomenon; as, μορφή -ῆς -ῇ, -αῖν, -ῶν -αῖς, ὁδὸς -οῦ -ῷ, &c.

In the first declension the genitive plural, being contracted, is always perispomenon; as, ἡμερῶν c. from ἡμεράων.

In the third declension, monosyllables, and also nouns in -ὴρ -έρος, when they drop the ε, are oxytone or perispomenon in all the genitives and datives, but have the accent in the other cases on the same syllable as in the nominative; as, μὴν μηνὸς μηνὶ μῆνα, μῆνε μηνοῖν, μῆνες μηνῶν μησὶ μῆνας.

For adjectives the rules are the same as for substantives, and the feminines and neuters have, if possible, the same accents as the masculines.

Verbs are paroxytone if the ultima be long, proparoxytone, if short; as, τύπτω, τύπτετε, τύπτομαι.

The exceptions to this rule may be observed in the following tenses of ἀκούω:—

Act. IND. 2 Aor. ἀκο-ῶ, -εῖς, -εῖ, &c.
Mid. IND. 2 Aor. ἀκο-οῦμαι, -εῖ, &c.
Pass. SUB. 1 Aor. ἀκου-σθῶ, -σθῇς, &c.
Pass. SUB. 2 Aor. ἀκο-ῶ, -ῇς, &c.
Act. OPT. 2 Fut. ἀκο-οῖμι, -οῖς, &c.
INF. 2 Fut. A. ἀκο-εῖν, M. ἀκο-εῖσθαι.
1 Aor. A. ἀκοῦ-σαι, P. ἀκου-σθῆναι.
2 Aor. ἀκο-εῖν, ἀκο-έσθαι, ἀκο-ῆναι.
Perf. ἠκου-κέναι, ἀκηκο-έναι, ἠκοῦ-σθαι.
Act. PART. 2 Fut. ἀκο-ῶν, -οῦσα, &c.
1 Aor. P. ἀκου-σθεῖς.
2 Aor. A. ἀκο-ών, P. ἀκο-είς.
Perf. ἠκου-κὼς, ἀκηκο-ὼς, ἠκου-σμένος.

NOTE 1. The active infinitive 1st aorist, and passive infinitive perfect are only properispomenon, if the penultima be a diphthong.

NOTE 2. All Active Participles of Verbs in -μι are oxytone.

§ 2. The QUANTITY of Syllables in Greek is determined in general by the same rules as in Latin.

§ 3. The Names of the FEET and the METRES are the same as in Latin.
